2 MAIN OBJECTIVES

1. Build a foundation for children to discriminate between manageable, "kid-size" problems and those that require adult Intervention
2. Provide a cognitive structure of nine tangible skills that can be used to solve "small" problems

POSITIVE SIDE EFFECTS

- ✓ Empower young people with the ability to determine their own behavior, encouraging an internal locus of control and appropriate problem ownership.
- ✓ Reduce Tattling through a proactive, preventative approach that keeps small problems from escalating and prevents negative attention-getting mechanisms from occurring.
- ✓ Systematize expectations of student behavior and provides consistency in rules and discipline on a school-wide basis.
- ✓ Provide a cognitive structure for discriminating between “small” problems young people can resolve and “big” problems that require adult intervention.

- ✓ Increase feelings of personal competence as young people successfully resolve conflicts, both within the structured lessons and in their own lives.
- ✓ Develop an important linkage between home and school as Kelso's Choice program is shared with parents.
- ✓ Give young people an important conflict resolution tool they can use when adults are not available or readily accessible.
